Preface

This book is published with the hope that many of the Bates family will be interested in knowing of their ancestry, and with the desire to promote acquaintance among relatives who are widely scattered.

The ancestry of Asa Bates is given, as far as it is ascertained, through Clement Bates of Hingham, Mass., and his English ancestors. The facts as here given are gathered from "The History of Hingham" by George Lincoln, from data in the library of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, especially H. F. Waters' "Genealogical Gleanings in England," and from private records. Some points in the early English ancestry are manifestly uncertain, but the record is given in the following form with the hope that it may assist in ascertaining the exact facts.

All of the descendants of Asa Bates are given, with the residence of those now living. Any corrections of this record, or addition to it, will be thankfully received.

Acknowledgment is hereby made to many friends for valuable assistance rendered in collecting the material which is included in this book.

THE NAME.

The name Bates is supposed to be derived from Bartholomew's son, Bartholomew being shortened to Batte or Bate; some authorities, however, derive the name from the Anglo-Saxon word "bate" meaning "contention."

In the form Bate the name was common in England for several centuries before the departure of the Puritans for New England. In New England the name was usually Bate, at first, changing gradually, and becoming fixed as Bates about the time of the Revolution.

ANCESTORS IN ENGLAND.

The ancestors of Clement Bates of Hingham, Mass., can be traced back to John Bate of Lydd, Parish of All Hallows, County of Kent, England, who died in 1522. The ancestry of this John is not certainly determined. A commonly accepted statement has been that he was a son of Thomas Bate of Lydd, who died in 1485, leaving a son John; but another authority gives the following:—

1. John Bate of Lydd, named in the wills of his brother William and his son Henry, both wills dated 1478.

2. Henry Bate of Lydd, wife's name Agnes, will dated May 20, 1478, had children, James, Simon, Andrew and Thomas.

3. James Bate of Lydd, ~~wife's name Agnes, will dated Jan. 14, 1491,~~ had children, John, Thomas and George. This John, son of James, is given as the ancestor who died in 1522. But Thomas Bate, brother of James, had two sons, John and William. It is possible that this John, son of Thomas, is the ancestral John who died in 1522. If this conjecture be correct the line would be through Thomas Bate as follows:

(Thomas Bate of Lydd, died in 1485, leaving two sons, John and William )

4. John Bate of Lydd, died in 1522, leaving two sons, Thomas and Andrew. He was Jurat of Lydd, and in his will left about £20 to the Lydd church.

5. Andrew Bate of Lydd, died in 1533.

He had children, Joan, Simon, William, John, Katherine and Thomas.

6. John Bate of Lydd, Jurat, married Mildred Ward Oct. 28, 1546, who was buried June 2, 1577. He married Mary Bennett June 16, 1579. He was buried March 1, 1580. He had children, Mary, James, Thomas and Andrew.

7. James Bate of Lydd, yeoman, married Mary Martine June 6, 1580. He died March 2, 1614. He had children, Robert, James, Anna, Anna, John, Thomas, Edward, Clement, Joseph, Mary, Isaac, Rachel and Martha. His son James settled at Dorchester, Mass. His son Clement settled at Hingham, Mass., and probably others settled in neighboring towns.

For several generations, beginning with John Bate who died in 1522, the office of Jurat of Lydd was held in this family.

The church of Lydd contains many memorials of the Bate family. The arms of the family as shown in the different memorials are "sable, a fess between three dexter hands, coupéd, argent." One form of the Bates Arms is shown on the cover of this book.
